Drone Training for Real Estate

The use of drones is increasing across the real estate sector, and for good reason. Drones offer incredible benefits for the savvy realtor, and the way in which drones are used across the real estate sector is increasing and is guaranteed to increase further. Imagine providing live imagery of a property from all perspectives during an open house or private showing. Talk about the bird's eye view being worth a thousand words. This is easily done with today's modern drones. However, the one caveat is you must be a licensed FAA commercial Part 107 holder. This can easily be accomplished by taking our "Drone Training for Real Estate" course. We provide two days of interactive and comprehensive in-person training. We take the student step by step through the process of preparing for the FAA Part 107 test. In addition to the eight lesson modules taught, we also teach students how to fly basic flight maneuvers around a property and how to live stream imagery to perspective clients. Upon completing this course, you will be ready to pass your illegally required FAA Part 107 course and take to the sky.
